Type of Accessory: Simple connectors like bolts, nuts, or small brackets are generally at the lower end of the price range ($5–$15), while larger or more complex fittings like elbows, tees, or risers can cost $20–$50 per piece. Material and Finish: Electroplated galvanized steel is more cost-effective than stainless steel but more durable than plain steel, influencing the price. Customization and Load Capacity: Accessories designed for heavy-duty or outdoor industrial applications, with reinforced structures or heat-resistant perforations, may increase the cost.

Order Quantity and Supplier: Factory-direct suppliers, especially from China, offer competitive pricing and flexible minimum order quantities, which can reduce per-unit costs for bulk orders.
