Key Takeaways

Tuvalu-style cable trays typically range from $20 to $150 per standard unit, depending on material, size, and bulk order quantities.

Pricing Overview

The cost of Tuvalu-style cable trays varies based on material type, tray design, and order volume. Standard hot-dip galvanized ladder-type trays, commonly used in building wiring, are priced per 2. 4-meter section, with prices generally starting around $20–$50 per tray for smaller orders and increasing for larger or custom specifications.

Wire mesh or custom-made trays from Tuvalu suppliers may cost more, often in the range of $80–$150 per unit, especially for bulk or export orders.

Factors Affecting Price

Material: Stainless steel or rust-resistant coatings increase cost compared to standard galvanized steel. Tray Type: Ladder, solid-bottom, or wire mesh designs have different manufacturing costs. Wire mesh trays are often more expensive due to fabrication complexity.

Length and Size: Standard lengths are 2. 4 meters, but longer or wider trays increase material usage and cost. Bulk Orders: Suppliers often offer discounts for large quantities, which can significantly reduce per-unit cost.

Shipping and Import Fees: For international buyers, shipping from Tuvalu or other manufacturing hubs may add to the total cost. Supplier OptionsVALDINOX and Emit Metal provide durable wire mesh and metal cable trays with global shipping capabilities.

B marketplaces like Europages and Go4WorldBusiness list multiple Tuvalu-based suppliers where buyers can request quotes for bulk orders. Local distributors may also stock Tuvalu-style trays, potentially reducing shipping costs and lead times.

Recommendation

For accurate pricing, it is best to contact suppliers directly with your required specifications, including tray type, material, length, and quantity. This ensures you receive a customized quote reflecting current market rates and shipping costs. Bulk orders typically offer the best value per unit.
